Launch of Alba Infra Partners

Alba Infra Partners (“Alba”), a fund management group specialised in equity investments in infrastructure projects, is proud to announce its launch to the market.

Alba is formed by the team that was running the infrastructure projects business of 3i and is led by three Managing Partners, Stephane Grandguillaume, CEO, John Cavill, CIO and Antoine Matton who have been working together since 2009.

Alba currently manages two funds with c.130 infrastructure projects across continental Europe, the UK and Ireland and has c. EUR 1bn of assets under management. The firm will look to continue to invest in European infrastructure projects. Alba has offices in Paris and London and is regulated by the AMF and the FCA.

Alba is an independent fund manager that will continue to build on its expertise, network and track record in the infrastructure projects market, including greenfield, brownfield and projects developers, with a particular focus on essential and sustainable infrastructure sectors including renewables, energy transition and environment, green mobility and social infrastructure.

With 160 years of combined infrastructure experience, of which 100 years have been spent working together, the team at Alba is long established with a strong track record of investing in, and successfully managing, infrastructure projects and platforms across Europe.

“We are delighted to announce the launch of Alba, which will focus on infrastructure projects across the mid-market space, where we see ample attractive investment opportunities supported by strong megatrends, and where we have a proven track record of outperforming the market” commented Stephane Grandguillaume, CEO.

“Alba has a proven asset and fund management model and a seasoned team, with whom we are excited and proud to be taking our next steps. Alba’s credentials across the infrastructure projects market demonstrate the team’s discipline and high integrity in different market conditions and together we look forward to further successes.” added John Cavill, CIO.
